

FAMILY & CONSUMER SCIENCES (FACS)

FACS 510 Administration of the Contemporary Family 3 Credit Hour(s)

Emphasis will be given to the current emerging issues concerning family demography including trends in marriage, divorce, fertility, and development as it relates to the contemporary family.

Offered: Online

FACS 530 Interior Design 3 Credit Hour(s)

This course is an overview of the professional standards and vocation of interior design. Through project-based experiential learning, students will develop skills in drafting, space planning, lighting design, and FF&E (furniture, fixture, & equipment) selection and specification. Incorporating the principles and elements of design, students will learn how to specify appropriate interior finishes, incorporate sustainable design strategies, and apply ADA standards to their projects.

Offered: Online

FACS 550 Textiles & Apparel Applications 3 Credit Hour(s)

This course is an overview of the textile and fashion industry focused on merchandising and design as well as textiles.

Offered: Online

FACS 570 Family Wellness 3 Credit Hour(s)

This course will examine the influences that culture, family and school environments have on a child's health, nutrition, well-being and the subsequent impact on communities.

Offered: Online